A List of Articles on Scottish History Published During the Year 2001

DRT. W. GRAHAM is University Librarian at the University of Newcastle-upon-Tyne. He is grateful for the collaboration of a group of contributors who examine over 200 British and foreign periodicals for this annual bibliography and without whom its publication would be impossible.

Readers should note that where an article straddles two sections, the practice is to mention it only once in the section where the greater weight of its interest lies. The date of publication is 2001 except where otherwise stated.

Reference should be made to other lists of interest to Scottish historians. These include the bibliography compiled for Discovery and Excavation: Scotland, published by the Scottish Regional Group of the Council for British Archaeology, which covers articles mainly of archaeological interest; and that in Scottish Economic and Social History, which includes articles specifically of social and economic interest. For items primarily of literary interest, reference should be made to the Annual Bibliography of Scottish Literature, published as a supplement to The Bibliothek. Attention should also be drawn to the Bibliography of Scotland, produced by the National Library of Scotland and available on-line through the World Wide Web (http://www.nls.uk).

I. DARK AGES TO 1100

CAMPBELL, E., 'Were the Scots Irish?', Antiquity, lxxv, 285–92. (Lack of archaeological evidence for population movement from Ireland to Scotland.)

CLANCY, T. O., 'The real St Ninian', Innes Rev., lii, 1–28. (Uinniau, a Briton in Whithorn and Ireland, d. 679?)

ETCHINGHAM, C., 'North Wales, Ireland and the Isles: The insular Viking zone', Peritia, xv, 145–87. (Political ties between the Scottish Isles and other Viking areas.)

HOUGH, C., 'p-Celtic Tref in Scottish place-names', Notes and Queries, n.s. xlviii, 213–5.

II. MIDDLE AGES, 1100–1560

‘The ferry of Inverennok’, Innes Rev., lii, 101–4. (Finlayston burn on the south side of the Clyde opposite Dumbarton.)

SHERTON, C., ‘The location of the siege camp at Berwick on Tweed, 1333’, Archaeologia Aeliana, xxx, 253–5. (Siege prior to the battle of Halidon Hill.)

III. 1560–1707

‘Two cases of mistaken identity: Sir David Lindsay’s St Syth and St Margaret’, Innes Rev., llii, 189–94.

MARTIN, C., ‘Resurrecting the “Swan”: Archaeology of a Cromwellian shipwreck, 1653’, History Scotland, I, 36–44.

IV. 1707–1832

ALLAN, D., ‘Anti-Hispanicism and the construction of late eighteenth-century British patriotism: Robert Watson’s “History of the reign of Philip the CARRUTHERS, G., ‘A manuscript fragment of an unsigned and undated draft letter by David Hume on the Ossian controversy in the Mitchell Library, Glasgow (OLI, p. 26)’, Notes and Queries, n.s. xlviii, 419.

EDDY, M. D., ‘Geology, mineralogy and time in John Walker’s University of Edinburgh Natural History lectures (1779–1803)’, History of Science, xxxix, 95–119.

MCLEAN, S. A., 'Cleansing the hawkers basket: Popular literature and the cheap periodical press in Scotland', Stud. Scottish Literature, 88–100. (Development of cheap literature.)

SIMPSON, M., 'You have not such a one in England': St Andrews University Library as an eighteenth-century mission statement', Library History, xvii, 41–56.

SLAGLE, J. B., 'A note on Joanna Baillie's addresses: Corrections to published historical records', Notes and Queries, n.s. xlvi, 131–2.

STEWART, R., 'Andrew Fletcher's conversion', Scotland, xxiii (1999), 1–15. (Fletcher's changing views on the Union issue.)

V. 1832 TO THE PRESENT DAY

ARNOLD, A. J., 'Riches beyond the dreams of avarice'? Commercial returns on British warship construction, 1889–1914', Economic Hist. Rev., liv, 267–89. (Reference to Clyde yards.)

BOOTH, G., 'The strange case of Mr Stevenson and Professor Smith', Aberdeen Univ Rev., liv, 386–97. (Robert Louis Stevenson and William Robertson Smith, editor of Encyclopaedia Britannica.)

DEVERIA, R., 'Tommadashan – a re-examination of a 19th-century copper mining and smelting operation in Perthshire, Scotland', Historical Metallurgy, xxxv, 87–98. (On the estate of the earl of Breadalbane.)

DONALD, W., 'The Admiralty and Hanna, Donald and Wilson, Paisley, Scotland', Scot. Industrial History, xxii, 22–50. (Civil engineers and shipbuilders.)

DYER, M., 'The evolution of the centre-right and the state of Scottish Conservatism', Political Stud., 50–50.

GREEN, E., 'History and archives in the business environment', Scot. Industrial History, xxii, 7–21.

JOHNSTON, I., and MURPHY, H., 'The Newshot Isle project', Scot. Geogr. Journ., cvii, 207–17. (Clyde Navigation Trust plan in the 1960s to divert the River Clyde to enable very large ships and an iron-ore terminal to be built.)

MACLEOD, J. L., 'Is its own little share of service to the national cause'. The Free Presbyterian Church of Scotland’s chaplains in the First World War', Northern Scotland, xxi, 79–97.

MARKLEY, A. A., 'Eliza Ogilvy, highland minstrelsy and the perils of Victorian motherhood', Studies in Scottish Literature, xxxii, 180–94. (Scottish poet.)

MUNRO, F., and SLAVEN, T., 'Networks and markets in Clyde shipping: The Donaldsons and the Hogarths', Business History, xliii, 19-50. (Two shipping firms.)

PERRING, E., 'The causes and impacts of changes in fish stocks in the waters round Fair Isle during the twentieth century', Scot. Geog. Journ., cxvii, 117-37. (Some historical elements.)

PITTOCK WESSON, J. H., 'Interdisciplinary studies at the University of Aberdeen, 1985-95. Cultural history and the Thomas Reid Institute', Northern Scotland, xxi, 121-8.

'Christ's kingdom in Scotland': The Clyde Committee on homeless children in Scotland', Scot. Econ. and Social History, xxi, 43-66. (Committee reported in 1946 on child welfare policy in Scotland.)

STORRIE, M, 'Recovering the historic designed landscape of the Islay estate', Scottish Archives, vii, 59-77.

VI. GENERAL AND AUXILIARY STUDIES

BAWCUTT, P., 'The Boston Public Library manuscript of John Lydgate's Siege of Thebes, its Scottish owners and inscriptions', Medium Aevum, lxxx, 80-94. (Lyle family in Renfrewshire and Campbells of Glenorchy.)

BEAVAN, I., 'Reports and surveys of archives in northern Scotland: "Neatness and order": The diaries and papers of William Knight, Professor of HOUGH, C., ‘The place-name Penninghame (Wigtownshire)’, Notes and Queries, n.s. xlviii, 99–102.

MEREDITH, D., ‘Migration and adaptation of popular balladry in the US Appalachian region’, Scot. Geog. Journ., xcix, 169–83. (Geography of music; includes Scottish ballads.)

WATSON, F., ‘On Her Majesty’s Historiographical Service’, History Scotland, i, 62–6. (Interview with Professor T. C. Smout.)